The Expatriate Insurance Specialists

Health insurance: how protected are you?

Most employers in Singapore offer their employees a health insurance policy as a company benefit. However, many of these policies provide completely inadequate coverage for expats in the event of needing to claim for a medical emergency or routine treatment that could cost you thousands of dollars.

IPG is offering Expat Living readers the opportunity to have a quick telephone assessment with one of our specialised consultants to review your current policy and help you get the peace of mind you need.
